WOMAN KILLS SELF IN LONG LEAP

Two Men, Woman, Rescued From Wrecked Speed Boat

RESERVES MOBOLIZED BY BRAZIL ORDER

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

Since our round'n' round yesterday about what to do with old safety razor blades we have received all kinds of suggestions. Some are good, and some are otherwise.

* * * *

One suggestion was that a hole be dug in the ground and the blades buried. This, so we are told, would "put iron in the ground."

* * * *

When we asked what would happen when we dug up the ground again we were told that the ground should not be dug up.

* * * *

A second suggestion was made by a well known person. He said that a certain motor car maker is buying old battleships and is scrapping them for metal to build his car.

* * * *

Why not send our used razor blades to the car maker, our friend wants to know.

* * * *

Add new simile: As easy as finding a hairpin in a drug store.

* * * *

They tell us at a number of drug stores here that they don't sell hairpins any more because there is no demand for them.

* * * *

There's a suggestion for putting an end to the business depression. Let all women let their hair grow long and buy hairpins.

* * * *

Members of the San Francisco chamber of commerce will visit Richmond today to get a first hand view of some of the industrial activities here.

* * * *

Yesterday a delegation from Redwood city visited this community and went away much impressed by the work being done here.

* * * *

One of the funniest things we've seen on a football field happened last Sunday in the game between St. Mary's and St. Ignatius.

* * * *

Herb Dana, the referee, who plays football almost as hard as the players during the game, suffered a slight accident. He ripped the leg of his white knickers.

* * * *

But Herb refused to be bothered about a little trifle like that. He tore away the dangling piece of cloth and kept at his job.

* * * *

A few minutes later he dove into the middle of a pile up of players who had fallen on the ball when a back fumbled. When Herb came back into view the other leg of his pants was torn too.

* * * *

For a full half hour Herb paraded about with his torn pants.

* * * *

In the rear of us a radio announcer chuckled oved the mike: "All Herb needs is a bagpipe and he'll be a regular highlander."

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 7.—UP—A call to arms rang through Brazil today and brought the civil war sharply home to the people of the nation as the federal government called out 10 classes in the army and naval reserves, mobilizing 420,000 men.

The classes called were men from 21 to 31 years old

A war office communique declared that 100,000 federal troops would be put into the field at once to quell the rebellion which broke out last Saturday. The others, in training camps, will be kept in reserve.

Martial law prevailed throughout the country. Many troop movements were reported as attacks were planned in the federal offensive Several reserve corps already had volunteered in interior stations, prior to the actual orders issued in Rio today.

The call for 420,000 men means that almost one out of every 100 persons in Brazil would be in uniform as rapidly as the mobilization can proceed. Brazil, with an area larger than the United States has a population of 40,000,000 persons.

The government requisitioned food supplies in Rio De Janeiro and vicinity. The minister of agriculture, Lyra Castro, moved to establish official control of the dis-

Local Boys Plead Guilty To Charges

BERKELEY, Oct. 7.—Two Richmond boys will be sentenced in court Friday morning on charges of "beating up" a Berkeley patrolman.

The two are Dominick Bertone, 21, and Raoul Ferrari, 18. Today when they appeared in court they changed their pleas from not guilty to guilty.

The two were arrested on charges of slugging Patrolman A. R. Frock of the local police department.

Frock told the court that he started in pursuit of the two lads as the result of a race they were having with another car. Although admitting that he climbed out of his own car with his gun in hand after the boys had stopped in Albany, Frock declared that he put the weapon away when he saw the two youths.

The officer declared that both the boys had been drinking and were in a belligerent frame of mind seeking to avoid arrest.

Bertone, he declared, hit him over the head with a piece of rubber tubing, while Ferrari struck him twice in the face.

Defense testimony will be submitted preliminary to imposing of sentence on Friday.

'Accidental Slayer' Arraigned In Court

OAKLAND, Oct. 7.—Victor Russo 63, of San Francisco was arraigned in the court of Police Judge Howard L. Bacon today on a charge of murder.

Preliminary examination for Russo was set for October 15.

Russo was held following the slaying of Harry L. Clark, 50, of Los Angeles, on board a crowded ferry here last week.

In a statement to police after the slaying, Russo declared that the shooting was accidental, and occurred when he was examining his pistol.

He also confessed, however, he was carrying the gun to kill another man, Guido Forneciari, his former business partner, police say.

He declared he wanted to be sure the gun "worked" and while he was testing it, the pistol was discharged and Clark fell dead, shot through the heart, police say.

Girl Dying From Disease Kills Self

OAKLAND, Oct. 7.—Told that she was dying of tuberculosis, Mrs. Frances Cravez, 25, shot and killed herself last night, it was revealed today.

Rose Vierra, with whom Mrs. Chavez lived here, told police that she and a man admirer of Mrs. Chavez witnessed the alleged suicide. She said that it was with the man's gun that her friend shot herself. After the shooting he fled, taking the gun with him, she said. Police are searching for him.

Police at first believed that the woman was a murder victim. But the girl's story cleared up the case.

The woman's body was found lying on a bed, partially clothed and with her hands folded over her breast. A wound in the head had caused instant death.

An empty cartridge was found on the floor, but there was no pistol in sight. A blood stained towel hung on a doorknob near the body.

Miss Vierra told police that when the three persons entered the home the man took off his coat and vest, revealing a pistol in a holster. She declared that Mrs. Chavez grasped the gun and before they could halt her, fired a shot through her brains.

Slayer Of Officer Killed By Posse

SAN FERNARDINO, Oct. 7.—UP—A Mexican laborer who had shot and killed a veteran member of the San Fernando police force, was routed from his barricaded home here today and shot to death by hastily summoned deputy sheriffs.

Sergeant Ben Mushaney was the officer killed by Juan Lopez, 55. Sergeant Mushaney and Chief of Police T. W. Grady went to the Mexican's home to arrest him on a charge of shooting and probably fatally wounding a woman, said by some persons to be his wife. She was taken to a hospital.

When Lopez fired through a window and killed Sergeant Mushaney, Chief Grady summoned Deputy sheriffs from the Newhall substation. Lopez resisted until his house had been filled with tear gas fumes. He ran out of the door clasping his rifle and was shot down by officers.

Harvard Bans Vallee Right To Sing Song

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 7.—UP—Hollywood, as well as Broadway, has sought and been refused permission to inject a dash of Harvard atmosphere into its product.

After denying Rudy Vallee the privilege of crooning the "Crimson" and the "Fair Harvard" over the radio, the Harvard University publicity bureau vetoed the request that Charles 'Buddy" Rogers, film star, be allowed to lead the Harvard university band in a talking picture sequence at Sande's theater, where Harvard grads receive their diplomas.

The Harvard Crimson university daily, in a neditorial entitled "Lillies of the Vallee" said that the college publicity bureau had "passed up two golden opportunities to put the university absolutely in a class by itself for unparalleled asininity."

It refused Rudy Vallee's offer "to raise 'Harvard' to the basis of the 'Stein Song.'" Concerning the Rogers incident, it said that "from purely altruistic motives, a young man came out of the west and offered to brandish the baton for the university band."

The editorial concluded

"The spectacle of 'America's sweetheart' cavorting at the head of the Harvard band in every movie theater and 'Fair Harvard' crooned and moaned to the accompaniment of the saxophone's bleat on every radio is overpowering: one cannot help but feel the giddiness at such a prospect, and perhaps under the circumstances the less said about the inefficiency of the publicity department the better."

TRIO SEVEN HOURS IN WATER

AVALON, Santa Catalina Island, Oct. 7.—UP—After floating in the Pacific ocean for seven hours two men and a woman were rescued at dusk tonight by the steamer Avalon, bound for the island from Los Angeles harbor.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Campbell, of Long Beach and Neil Lawrence, of Porterville were kept afloat by life preservers and air cushions after the speed boat in which they had left the island for the mainland sank almost without warning.

They had almost given up hope of rescue when private boats passed without seeing them. At last they drifted into the commercial steamer Jane and were sighted by Second Officer Gus Matzee, who was on the bridge of the Avalon.

Mr. and Mrs. Campbell were close together but young Lawrence had drifted some distance away.

"Hurry, please hurry," he sobbed weakly as a boat from the Avalon neared him. "We can't hold out much longer."

The three were brought to the Avalon hospital where their condition was announced not critical, although all were almost completely exhausted.

The trio left Catalina isthmus in a 22 foot speed boat at 9:15 a. m. They were half way across the 20-mile route to Los Angeles when the boat developed motor trouble. Then it began to fill with water and within two or three minutes disappeared into the sea.

EL CENTRO, Oct. 7.—UP—Arizona's suit against Boulder Dam construction today was characterized by Earl C. Pound, Brawley member of the Colorado river commission, as a mere political gesture.

The suit was kept pending before the public prior to the Arizona primaries, and now it is resurrected again as a pawn in the November election, Pound, here for a meeting of the Imperial Valley irrigation district, declared.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 7.—UP—The Federal Court today deferred until October 13, its decision on whether to confirm the United States commissioner's order for removal of Joseph R. Adkins to Oklahoma on a charge that he is Robert Atchison, who committeed a murder in Indian territory 30 years ago.

Harry Atchison has told authorities that Adkins is his brother, Robert Aachison, who killed August Cootz, a railroad foreman, and was convicted of the crime, later escaping. Attorneys for Adkins claim that certain rights of the Indian territory were transferred to the states and that because Oklahoma was Indian territory at the time of the crime the Federal court has no jurisdiction in the case.

A'S FAVORED IN TODAY'S CONTEST

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 7.—UP—"I supposed they had Shibe Park all swept out and locked up for the winter," said Gabby Street, with a broad grin, as the St. Louis Cardinals arrived in Philadelphia today to renew the world series with the Philadelphia Athletics.

Such had been the expectations when the teams last left this city, with the National league contenders apparently a badly beaten lot, the club. The Mackmen, after winning the first two games, had looked forward to sweeping the series in St. Louis, and returning home with nothing more serious to think about than how to spend the long end of the world series' money.

Now, however, the A's have a real fight on their hands. While they lead in the series, three to two, they must beat two of the Cardinals' best pitchers in the rest of the games here before they can make Connie Mack that little present of his fifth world's championship.

Hallahan On Mound

"Wild Bill" Hallahan, the brawny young Irish lad, who shut the Athletics and stopped their winning rush in the third game of the series, is ready for duty tomorrow, with big Jess Haines, who won the fourth contest also available.

The Athletics, it seems, must depend upon Lefty Grove and George Earnshaw, who already have had plenty of work, but who are the only pitchers he can count upon to win.

While the situation as far as pitchers goes seems to favor the Cardinals on the eve of the sixth game, the fact that they will be playing "sudden death" baseball, with the necessity of winning everything or seeing their brave and belated bid for the world's championship go for naught, will tell on them tomorrow.

A's Favored

The odds favor the American League champions, but those who saw the game put up by Gabby Street's Red Birds in the three games at St. Louis are by no means convinced that they cannot come on from behind once more and win.

Analysis of the three games in St. Louis, the last of which was fought on even terms until Jimmy Foxx's prodigious homer in the ninth ended it suddenly, shows that the Cardinals are just as good a ball club as the Mackmen in the thick of a world series fight, except for those winning punches in the shape of long extra base drives.

With Mickey Cochrane, Al Simmons and Jimmy Foxx likely to break up a game at any moment, there will be dangerous for any pitcher, even one who can beat them in eight out of nine innings.

Cards Confident

The Cardinals are handicapped by the complete collapse of Jim Bottomley at bat. The first baseman has been the big disappointment of the series from a National league point of view.

It all depends upon whether young Hallahan, the left-hander can repeat his victory of last Saturday. The Cardinals are confident that he can, and came into Philadelphia today bent upon backing him up to the limit.

At any rate, it promises to be a stirring finish to what most unexpectedly has proved to be a real worth-while world series.

Ready For Today's Contest

Tennessee's Football Pair Have Troubles

KNOXVILLE, Oct. 7.—UP—For three years now "Buddy" Hackman and Mack McEver have been matching gridiron exploits. They are intimate friends, these Tennessee touchdown twins, but there is also a keen rivalry between them.

Mack took the opening kickoff back 98 yards for a touchdown in the Alamaba game in 1928. In the Washington and Lee game a week later, Hack, not to be outdone, returned the kickoff 95 yards to score.

Hack was the supposedly strong defense man in their sophomore year, but Mack came up to his standard in that respect during the season of a year ago. Although Mack was the leading scorer of the country in 1929, he had to give way to his mate in the annual charity game on New Year's Day between the north and south sections of the Southern conference.

Hack scored twice on passes in that contest, and later raced 50 yards on an off-tackle slant to a third touchdown.

It was due to Hack's expert interference that Mack was able in the last game of the season to run back a punt 70 yards to score but he returned the compliment a few plays later by taking out the lone survivor of the opposition defense while Hack took a pass and galloped 50 yards to the goal.

This summer Hack injured his knee playing tennis, and when it refused to respond to treatment, journeyed here to the bonesetter's On the same day that he arrived from Nashville up popped Mack from Britol, Pa., also with a bum knee, and also headed for the bonesetter's. Those two boys just can't seem to do anything original.

New Stadium To Be Dedicated At Grid Game

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—UP— Primo Carnera, giant Italian heavyweight lost his first American fight here tonight when he was outpointed in 10 rounds by Jimmie Maloney, second rate Boston fighter.

Maloney weighed 195 pounds, 65 less than his huge opponent.

The result was the biggest boxing upset in years, for the Italian who has scored a long string of knockouts since arriving in this country was a big favorite.

The spectators, who expected the south Boston boy to be clubbed out in a round or two were amazed when Maloney carried the fight to Primo from the beginning of the second round. In the fourth round Maloney opened up and practically battered Carnera off his feet.

Lacoste Yearns For 'Old Days'

PARIS, Oct. 7.—Looking back over the 1930 tennis season, Rene Lacoste, the only top-rank player of the world to see the inevitable drama unfold from the sidelines, finds little change from 1929.

"Cochet still is the greatest player living, then Tilden. I would put Borotra third, and after that" —The gerat automaton shares the popular conviction that 'after that' there is a great falling away—except that most of us would substitute Lacoste for Borotra. It doesn't do to confuse popularity with ability.

"It is true," Lacoste admits, measuring his words very carefully, "that nine out of ten spectators miss the finer points.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 7.—UP—Clifford Sutter, Tulane University tennis star, who has been one of the sensational players in the east this season, has reached his high point of play in a relatively brief time. This frail 19-year old collegian now holds the Southern Conefrence title the national intercollegiate title, and won the Eastern grass court play.

His rise has been due in part to the able coaching of Mercer Beasley, Tulane coach. Beasley has had considerable success as a coach. One of his proteges is Frankie Parker, boy star of Milwaukee.

Tribe Defeats Los Angeles In Double Header

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 7.—UP—The Los Angeles Angels, who had only a slight chance of winning the second half of the Pacific Coast league's season when they opened the series with Seattle today, cracked badly and took two beatings from the Indians.

The Indians, scoring eight runs in the third inning, won the first game, 15 to 13, and then walked away with the second, 11 to 1, their pitcher, House, allowing only three hits. As a result Hollywood increased the lead over Los Angeles to nine and a half games, and the season will end a week from Sunday.

In the other afternoon game Portland trounced the Missions, 13 to 3.

RICHMOND CLUB PLAY ENJOYED BY LARGE CROWD

The Richmond club's presentation of the three-act comedy, "Three Wise Fools" deserved the goodly round of applause awarded it in the auditorium of the Roosevelt school last night.

The play was the result of the able direction of Zelda Chapin and of intelligent casting. The members of the cast were chosen with an insight into the needs of each individual character.

Gervase Browne portrayed the part of Theodore Finlay, the financier of the bachelor establishment maintained by the three wise fools to perfection. He was the grumpy dry-humored masculine "old-maid" of the group who could not refrain from profanity even after the arrival of their bequeathed ward, Sidney Fairchild.

Russell Whiting took the part of the distinguished psychologist who decided the three men had gotten into very deep ruts and needed reforming. His portrayal of the middle-aged doctor of set ways and yet young at heart was very well done.

Dr. T. A. Guthrie was an excellent choice for the jurist of the triumvirate, being an excellent amateur actor possessing a certain amount of finish.

Sidney Fairchild, the young lady of the story was enacted by Regina Matthews, a local high school student of no mere histrionic ability for one of her years. Miss Matthews did very well in getting across the dramatic portion in which she met the escaped convict who was avowedly out to get the jurist who had sent him to prison and at the same time was protecting the girl's father.

The other feminine role, that of the housekeeper, Saunders, was splendidly and convincingly portrayed by Virginia Bryant.

Allen Moore, a local man was most interesting as the nephew of Findley and the young swain of Sidney. Here is a young man who will bear watching by all interested in local theatricals.

It was a wise person who chose Benjamin Banner to play Suratt, the escaped convict. He was not only a small man but through a good make-up artist and through ingenuity in acting was convincing in the role. Another wise choice was that of C. F. Westwood in the part of John Crawshay who though an escaper along with Suratt was innocent of any crime which was proved in the course of the play.

Other members of the cast who deserve commendation were: Clair Thomas as the detective, Poole; Henry Clarke, a most satisfactory butler in a staid establishment, and Melvin Sprague as Clancy, the cop.

As the play unwound it was conclusively proved that the cast had been selected from a list of persons well versed in the art of dramatic interpretation.

The musical overture and entre acts were presented by the Orpheus trio a well known group of young local musicians. The personnel includes Vivian Vaughn, piano; Audra Wilson, violin, and Madeline Whittlesey, 'cello.

REDS SCORED BY HOOVER SPEECH

KINGS MOUNTAIN BATTLEFIELD, S. C., Oct. 7.—UP—A direct warning against Socialism or its violent brother Bolshevism was delivered here today by President Hoover to the textile and mill people, citizens of the new industrial south.

Standing upon the time-worn ramparts of Rocky King's Mountain where the charging frontiersmen of the infant American republic defeated the British in the revolution, the chief executive urged the workers to defend American ideals and guard against un-American influences.

His pine platform was but a score of miles from Gastonia, N. C., where blood was shed in 1929 in the conflict of striking cotton mill workers. The activities of communist agitators among the strikers aroused much discussion at that time and were obviously the object of the president's remarks.

Upwards of 30,000 men, women, and children sat on the mountainside in front of the president. They came by special trains and automobiles from all sections of the western Carolinas and Virginia to hear the first persident who has spoken in the south since Taft.

The bodies were brought to Dover yesterday across the English channel by the destroyer Tempest.

WILLIAM POWELL stars in "For the Defense," which opens at the Fox-California theater tomorrow.

RAFFLES WINS APPLAUSE AT FOX

Ronald Colman as that most famous of all gentlemen crooks, "Raffles," cavorts at his adventurous best in a stirring photop'ay no won view at the Fox-California theater. Samuel Goldwyn presents this United Artists picture as a successor to "Bulldog Drummond" in which the famous English star perpetuates his allegiance to detective thrillers.

"Raffles" is Colman's third successive criminal talking film. The first, "Bul'dog Drummond," revealed Colman in pursuit of criminals. The second, "Condemned!" showed him a convict, held in the tropic fastness of Devil's Island. "Raffles," the third, shows him as an amateur criminal, desperately trying to elude the law.

Kay Francis, she of the dark eves and the glossy black hair and the piquantly upturned nose, is Colman's leading lady in the picture. Which, incidentally, will show Colman making love to a brunette for the first time in many years, six to be exact. Blondes there have been —Ann Harding, Joan Bennett, Vilma Banky, Lily Damita, Lillian Gish and Constance Talmadge, but not a brunette until Producer Goldwyn picked Miss Francis.

David Torrence, who was the doughty banker of "Disraeli" has the role of Inspector McKenzie of Scotland Yard. The veteran Frederick Kerr is the Lord Melrose of the piece, while Alison Skipworth, who has an equal number of the spoken stage's service stripes, is hisscreen spouse.

Frances Dade and Bramwell Fletcher, both new to pictures, make their first bow in "Raffles." Her success in the Colman picture has already brought Miss Dade parts in "He Knew Women" with Lowell Sherman and another with Cyril Maude in "Grumpy". Bramwell Fletcher has been equally successful.

The story of Raffles' adventures, told and retold for the last twenty-five years on the stage, in fiction and on the screen, has become so well known that it has made the name of the hero a word in our everyday language. Samuel Goldwyn assigned Sidney Howard to the task of modernizing these legends to thrill this generation as it did the last.

The story, briefly, is that of the society bure'ar, gentleman born and bred, who robs for adventure

Hospital To Get Confiscated Rum

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 7.—UP—The Veterans' hospital at Livermore may develop a waiting list, with veterans anxiously looking at their tongues in mirrors, in hopes of discovering symptoms of some ailment that will admit them to the institution. The reason is the announcement of Prohibition Administrator William Walker that a recent seizure of real Sandy McDonald, King George, Haig & Haig and Johnny Walker whiskey, said to be the first haul of actual "pre-Volstead brews" in many a day, is to be turned over to the hospital for medical use.

Stanford Editor Scores California

PALO ALTO, Oct. 7.—UP—Editorial comment in the "Daily Californian," student newspaper of California, criticising Stanford's action in keeping the famed Stanford Axe, recently re-stolen from California, locked in a safe deposit vault, today evoked a scathing reply from Gale Wallace, editor of the Stanford Daily. Wallace pointed out that the action was in keeping with the wishes of authorities at both schools.

POWELL STARS IN FOR THE DEFENSE

Professional jealousy, not unknown to the people of stage and screen any more than it is to people in other lines of endeavor, is wholly lacking in the make-up of William Powell. The star of "Street of Chance" "Shadow of the Law" and "For the Defense," the romance booked for showing tomorrow and Friday at the Fox-California Theater, could rightfully be credited with co-directing each of his pictures.

"The Powell method," as Hollywood has come to call it, does not presume to usurp the duties of the director. Prior to the start of each picture, Powell spends days with the man who will guide him, gets all angles of plot, characterization and treatment, and then does every thing in his power to cooperate and to help the other members of the cast to cooperate with the director, John Cromwell in the case of "For the Defense."

ROCKET POWER LAUDED BY SAVANT

NEW YORK.—UP— The liquid hydrogen-oxygen fuel developed by Prof. Goddard to drive his now famous "moon rockets" in their exploration of extreme altitudes may result in development of a super-airplane, one capable of traveling 1,000 miles an hour through the thin air miles above the present aviator's ceiling.

This interesting possibility in advanced by William H. Wenstrom, United States army technical expert, who interprets Prof. Goddard's experiments in the current issue of the Review of Reviews.

Explaining Prof. Goddard's principal of rocket propulsion, in which the rocket is driven higher and higher by a succession of periodic explosions of the fuel, the writer points out that the German, Fritz von Opel has flown in a glider propelled by black powder using the same principle. The Goddard fuel is 100 times as powerful as black powder, he points out.

"The recent trans-America record of Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh focused attention on an idea long half-known," he continues. "That is, that under suitable conditions surprising airplane speeds can be made at extremely high altitude. Where a height of five miles is extreme for the screw driven craft, the rocket plane can perhaps go up 20 miles and cruise at more than 1,000 miles an hour. With such a craft it would be possible to watch a sunset fade in Massachusetts and then experience the sensation of time turned backward as the plane sped for San Francisco where we could watch our second sunset in one afternoon."

The most conservative scientists today view it as not at all inconceivable the moon may some day be reached as a result of the Goddard experiments, says the writer. Both the Smithsonian institution and Daniel Guggenheim, the philanthropist, are now supporting the work.

"To visualize the next Goddard rocket, think of a metal pocket pencil magnified until its length is about 10 feet," says the description. "The pointed end contains several instruments. A special camera will bring back a picture of the complete solar spectrum, never visible on earth because the atmosphere absorbs many important radiations. An air-trap will bring back actual samples of gas, deciding whether helium or hydrogen predominates—at present a vexed question. And electrical instruments will measure the ionization of these upper atmospheric levels, while a barometer records their pressure."

Pan-American Railroad Span Wins Approval

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7—UP—The Pan-American Railway project, to link New York and Buenos Ayres by 10,000 miles of steel, will be given a new lease of life at the fourth Pan-American commercial conference, scheduled here Oct. 5 to 12, 1931.

Friends of the project have secured its inclusion in a revised conference program approved by a committee consisting of Minister Alfaro of Panama, Minister Sacasa of Nicaragua and Charge d'Affaires Jose T. Barton of Cuba, soon to be submitted to governments of the American republics.

Differ On Merits

During the last decade political attention to the great continental railway was subordinated because of the transcending interest in the Pan - American highway and also because the chief friends of the railway differed as to the relative merits of the Andean and the east-of-the-Andes routes.

Some authorities felt that a longitudinal railway through the Americas would be uneconomic in competition with coastwise steamer lines.

The force of these objections has been minimized, however, because of the evident fact that a New York-to-Buenos Ayres railway is already more than two-thirds constructed. And local economic considerations along the proposed route render certain the construction of a large part of the remaining third.

A memorandum prepared for the guidance of the program committee showed that the Pan-American railway, by the Andean route from New York to Buenos Ayres would be approximately 10116 miles in length.

Of this total, 7126 miles actually have been constructed, leaving only 2900 to be built.

MANY TREATED AT HOSPITAL OF U.C.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 7.—UP—During the past fiscal year the University of California hospital and medical school, in addition to treating 133,960 people in its clinics, gave free hospital service, including operations or medical treatment, to 1426 individuals sick and in need. Announcement of this fact was made today by Dr. Lionel Schmitt, director of the University hospital, on the basis of statistics just compiled for the year 1929-30.

Each of these individuals, unable to pay for medical care, was given an average of two weeks' hospitalization. This service, for 1426 people, if paid for at prevailing rates would have cost about $130,000, without taking into consideration the services of the doctors and surgeons on the medical school staff.

Forty-four of California's 58 counties participated in the benefits of this service through sending patients to the University hospital, San Francisco, being the most populous county in northern California, sent the greatest number, a total of 935, though many of these were fro mother parts of the state and residents in San Francisco for the purpose of obtaining medical treatment.

Other counties whose residents were given aid in time of need were: Alameda 149 cases; Amador 1; Butte 13; Calaveras 3; Colusa, 3; Contra Costa, 33; Del Notre, 2; El Dorado, 2; Fresno, 2; Glenn, 2; Humboldt 7; Kern, 3 King, 1; Lake, 2; Larsen, 2; Madera, 5; Marin, 27; Mendocino, 5; Merced, 4; Monterey, 12; Mendocino, 5; Merced, 4; Monterey, 12; Napa, 9; Nevada, 2; Orange, 1; Placer, 8; Sacramento, 8; San Diego 1; San Joaquin, 17; San Luis Obispo, 2; San Mateo, 32; Santa Clara, 33; Santa Cruz, 7; Shasta, 3; Siskiyou, 4; Solano, 29; Sonoma, 27; Stanislaus, 14; Tehama, 1; Tulare, 7; Tuolumne, 2; Trinity, 1; Ventura, 1; Yolo, 1; Yuba, 3.

Redwood City Visitors Here

The fame of Richmond is to be carried to neighboring cities in a series of visits by representatives of other communities, according to announcement by the chamber of commerce.

Today Richmond was visited by a delegation from Redwood City, intent on getting a first hand view of local activities in anticipation of waterfront developments in the peninsula city.

Tomorrow Richmond will be visited by a group from the industrial committee of the San Francisco chamber of commerce under the guidance of C. A. Flemming, chairman of the committee.

The San Francisco delegation will tour Richmond as part of a visit to the principal points in Contra Costa county, and will be escorted in Richmond by P. M. Sanford, president of the chamber, and other community leaders.

The Redwood visitors toured the Oakland waterfront in the morning and Richmond in the afternoon, being escorted along the Richmond inner harbor by Charles Engel, manager of the Parr-Richmond terminal.

LUBITSCH FIGHT AIRED TO PRESS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 7.—UP—The blow which Mrs. Helene Lubitsch struck at her famous film director husband, Ernest Lubitsch, during a dance in a Hollywood night club was only a love tap, she said today.

But Mrs. Lubitsch added that her estranged husband was not the man she loved. She said that she intends to marry Hans Kraly, long the director's best friend. And Kraly, it is necessary to explain, was really the cause of the fight, which occurred Saturday night.

In chronological order, Lubitsch saw Kraly and Mrs. Lubitsch dancing together. He decided that they were making faces at him and saying mean things about him in German. So he stepped away from his partner and took a punch at Kraly. Mrs. Lubitsch then jumped into the fray and hit her former husband on the jaw.

Couldn't Return

"Mrs. Lubitsch spoke correctly when she said she smacked me when she came to the rescue of Mr. Kraly," Lubitsch said. "Naturally I couldn't strike back and when a man, pugilistically speaking, does not defend himself any more it is called a technical knockout.

"I am proud to report that Mrs. Lubitsch has a pretty strong punch and I think that with a little training she has a bright future ahead of her."

As for Mrs. Lubitsch, she frankly spoke of love.

Long Friends

"We have long been friends," he said of Kraly. "And now this deep friendship has ripened into love. I wish to deny reports that we are already engaged, but I intend to marry him when my divorce from Mr. Lubitsch becomes final in eight months. He is such a kind and true friend."

Lubitsch was informed of the proclamation of love.

"Kraly wanted Mrs. Lubitsch," he said. "I wish him good luck and I hope he keeps her for the next 100 years."

Denies Part

Mrs. Lubitsch denied that Kraly had played any part in her divorce. Her husband said only that he had given her their home, a property settlement of $150,000 and their automobiles. "I did all this to avoid scandal," he said. "I asked that we forget each other. As far as we both were concerned we were dead."

Kraly also had a few comments to make on the fight, which, incidentally, occurred in the Embassy club at a benefit given by Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford.

"I didn't know until several minutes later that the 'push' Lubitsch gave me was supposed to have been a punch," he declared. "I hardly felt it and thought at first that some dancer had brushed against me. When I found out that he was excited I asked for an explanation, but he was too excited. I don't know yet what brought the trouble on. I certainly don't want trouble with him. If I am forced to it I naturally will defend myself."

Made Faces

Lubitsch claimed that Mrs. Lubitsch not only made faces at him and followed him about after the melee, but earlier had appeared at his Malibu Beach home and had stood in front of the place, making faces and hurling ugly words.

"Mrs. Lubitsch was an extra girl when I married her. I brought her and her two sons to this country. Kraly started as an assistant with me in Germany. I made a writer of him and brought him to this country. He lived at my house for six months and enjoyed the hospitality of my home for six years."

TRADE LEADER HITS SLUMP OF BUSINESS

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Analyzing the present business situation, John E. Edgerton, president of the National association of Manufacturers, in his annual address here today at the association's convention, noted some of the "sweet uses of adversity" as exemplified in the trade slump.

"The use which the common intelligence makes of the one with which we have just been at grips," he said, "will determine the birthday of its successor, and both its character and extent."

Voicing his belief that "nothing has happened to weaken the confidence of understanding minds" in the soundness of our economic system or scheme of government, Edgerton contended that much less is wrong with either system than with "the operators and some of their policies and methods of operation." He characterized as "emotional proposals" legislation advocating public unemployment insurance, old age pensions and similar measures, and expressed the belief that a general stabilization of employment would eventually be brought about by science.

Edgerton's address, in part follows:

"With our almost miraculously developed modes and vehicles of transportation, we have been moving so rapidly within recent years that we had about lost our senses both of direction and velocity. Getting, spending, playing, riding and chasing the elusive shadows of prestige, fame and glory, had apparently become the dominant passions. To get rich quickly—without earning—and then out of the surplus unused by selfish indulgence to buy off the god of vengeance with counterfeit philanthropy seemed to be establishing itself as the common goal. Then—there was a crash. Business started on its enforced vacation leaving behind it two tremendous armies of the unemployed—one of them economically unprepared for unemployment, and the other protected for a while by savings and surpluses accumulated while prosperity ruled. The ensuing opportunity to the common run of men to take stock of themselves and to rechart their courses in the light of their findings will be valuable in proportion as it is made so by wise use. And such is one of the sweetest of adversity's uses.

"Certainly, nothing has happened to weaken the confidence of understanding minds in the essential parts of our American economic system and in its adaptability eo the highest ends of progress, nor in our scheme of government. On the contrary, while the depression has brought into clearer view some egregious abuses of both our economic and political mechanisms, it has at the same time demonstrated their sufficiency of strength for as severe a test as has yet been known. Can we and will we take such corrections as experience has revealed to be both desirable and necessary? If we do, then another 'sweet use' has been made of adversity.

Robbery Of Big Bill's Wife Held As Plot

CHICAGO, Oct. 7. —UP— Another little Chicago drama sent every available policeman tonight seeking the bandits who had the temerity to rob Mayor William Hale "Big Bill" Thompson's wife of $17,000 in jewels.

And if the bandits are not caught immediately, its going to go hard with the police department, the major intimated in saying "It's up to Commissioner John Alcock. We'll see if he can make good."

So swift capture of the four youthful bandits, who slugged Mrs. Thompson's chauffeur at the door of her apartment house and then relieved her of all her jewelry, overshadowed everything else the city's 5,000 policemen had on their minds.

A surprising rumor spread swiftly that the robbery had been planned by underworld forces deliberately to discredit Alcock, whose hard-boiled tactics against gangsters has gained him considerble fame during the last few months.

Rumor had it that the robbery consummated plans of the "Scarface Al" Capone syndicate to force Alcock from office as spectacularly as possible. The next move, if the rumors are correct, would be to put a "reasonable" commissioner in Alcock's place, through use of political alliances favorable to the underworld.

HIGH STUDENTS HEAR FIRE TALK

The students of Richmond Union High school yesterday listened to interesting talks on fire prevention given by Assistant Fire Chief Barry and Captain S. G. Davidson of the Richmond fire department.

Barry warned the students against carelessness, and illustrated the necessity of care by the description of many accidents caused by carelessness. He told of many ways in which fire may start. He also explained the workings of the Pyrene soda and acid extinguisher.

The requirements for the winning of the Louis B. Mayer cup, which has already been won twice by the local fire department for fire prevention, were told by Capt. S. G. Davidson.

The use of the inhalator was demonstrated by Captain Davidson and Assistant Chief Barry.

Police Hunt Pair In Fraud

A search is being made by Richmond police for a man and woman who yesterday collected $5 from a secretary in a local downtown business office. The couple presented the plea that they were destitute and had a family that was in need of food.

The man, who gave his name as Cameron, stated that his address was Twenty-third and Burbeck. No such family near this address was found on later investigation. Cameron stated that he had formerly worked for a Hayward newspaper.

WHAT NOT TO MOVE

MARGUERITE MOOERS MARSHALL

OCTOBER first is moving day, and women all over work hard on tnat day.

To transport their goods and chattels to what they hope and believe will be the Perfect Home at last.

Beds and chairs and tables, pictures and mirrors and clocks,
The baby's toy trains, Little Sister's dolls, Dad's golf clubs, Mother's bridge sets,
Knives and forks and salad bowls and saucepans,
Boudoir pillows, ironing boards, bread plates, bath-towels,
Rugs and the radio and the remains of all the wedding presents—
All will be carried out into the cavernous trucks
And then across the town and up the steps to the New Place,
With a woman bossing the job working and worrying frantically
To get things settled in time to feed Father and the children,
Who—especially Father—are conspicuous by their absence on moving day—
Even Mr. Coolidge, you may remember, had important business at the office
On the day when he moved into his new Northampton home.
Moving is traditionally and inescapably the job of the woman of the house,
And she does wonders in packing up and in making sure
That nothing important is left behind.
Maybe she can't always find her husband's raincoat, or the baby's favorite picture book
In the first night's mess at the new home—
But both articles are sure to be SOMEWHERE—
Even if "somewhere" is at the bottom of the last case unpacked!
A woman, we believe, needs no advice about what or how to "move"—
But does she always decide carefully enough what NOT to "move"?
She ruthlessly, sensibly weeds out tangible rubbish—
Old clothes, over-shabby furnishings, oilcloth that doesn't fit the new kitchen floor, useless souvenirs—
Sternly she stills her husband's protests
Against discarding "those trousers I wore fishing five years ago,"
Or "that inkwell I got at the Underwriters' Dinner—
"I might use it SOME TIME!"
But a woman, it seems to us, too often takes with her, on moving day,
Intangible waste products that she had far better leave behind.
Why not forever shut the door of the old apartment or house
On the memory of all the unhappy quarrels,
Of all the really disagreeable arguments,
Of the tears and sneers and heartaches
Which do accumulate in even a successful marriage and a happy family life?
If only there were a domestic statute of limitations—
A law preventing husband or wife from bringing up past offenses
For current blame and recrimination!
Women, we frankly concede, constitute the sex
For which this law is needed most urgently—
Men are not nearly as likely to conduct post-mortems in the home—
It's women who are forever "bringing things up."
Women who simply never will "let it drop"—
We ought to know. Open confession is good for the soul—
And we plead guilty of altogether too long and inconvenient and aggressive a memory
Of things that have gone wrong!
Since, however, in marriage and the home no statute of limitations does run,
Why not use the great American institution of moving day
To dispose, once and for all, of past unpleasantness?
Why can't every family, moving tomorrow, leave all fusses and grievances and grouches behind them?
Don't "pack up your troubles in your old kit-bag," as the song suggests,
Don't pack them in your mental memory book—
Don't pack them at all—don't MOVE them—"leave 'em lay" in the old place you're leaving—
That's the one little suggestion we have the temerity to make
To all the highly efficient women who manage moving day—
Take the happy memories with you, "shake" the other kind—
Believe us, they're not WORTH moving!

LINES TO A PUZZLED MALE

You aren't quite certair
Bedevilled by doubt—
You can't even think
The darned puzzle out:
Edna is peppy and giddy at times;
Eulalie is winsome and dabbles in rhymes;
You haven't seen Edna for some time, it seems;
Eulalie believes you're the man of her dreams.
And in-between times, you know you must cram
If you ever expect to pass that exam!
You'd like to see Edna—
Recall days gone by,
But you really can't bear
To hear Eulalie sigh.
Poor puzzled creature! Your head's in a whirl,
How on earth can you tell which is the only girl?

POSTSCRIPT

Young man, hark to wisdom:
Your life-mate must be
A helpmate unselfish,
To aid constantly—
To share all your sorrow, partake of your joy.
If such a lass loves you, you're lucky, my boy.
So grab while the grabbing is good, or you'll find
Your chosen young ladies have both changed their mind!

THE STRONGER SEX

(Dr. Axel Munthe, in The Story of San Michele)

"I think on the whole much better of women than of men, but I do not tell it to them. They have far more courage, they face disease and death much better than we do, they have more pity and less vanity. Their instinct is on the whole a safer guide through their life than our intelligence, they do not make fools of themselves as often as we do."

Try This

Place a heavy rug or several thicknesses of old carpet or burlap at the foot of the cellar stairs as a warning that the bottom has been reached. This is safer than painting the last step white, as often the cellar is too dark to see the white step, whereas one can always feel when he steps on the carpet.

A DISH A DAY

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

One dessert that is always sure to delight youngsters is butterscotch pie, particularly when it is made in individual pies of tart size. There is a very good reason for making these pies in the tiny individual size; they are far more crisp and crusty that way. And as they are rather rich, it is well to keep the servings small.

KAREN HOLLIS

Only last week one of our readers gave a dinner party for her twelve-year-old daughter who was leaving for boarding school. As the ingredients of the other courses for the dinner had cost far more than she had counted on, she decided she would have to substitute a simple home-made dessert for the elaborate frozen pudding she had intended to order from a confectioner's. She did this with some misgivings, as her daughter's playmates are a blase lot, so you can well imagine her delight when the butterscotch pies she served were hailed as nothing short of inspiration. It came out that the children were so accustomed to store desserts at home that home-made delicacies were something to cheer over!

Here is the recipe she used. If you have some blase youngsters in your home you may want to try it on them.

BUTTERSCHOTCH PIE

2 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening
1-3 cup (about) cold water

Sift flour once before measuring, then sift again with salt. Cut in the shortening, then add just enough cold water to hold the ingredients together. Chill in refrigerator. Pinch off small portion of the dough, roll out very thin and fit over outside of muffin tins. Prick with a fork. Bake in hot oven about ten minutes, or until slightly brown. Remove carefully from pan and fill.

BUTTERSCOTCH FILLING

1 cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons water
2 tablespoons flour
½ cup water
2 egg yolks
1 cup cream or evaporated milk
½ teaspoon vanilla

Mix brown sugar with two tablespoons of water and boil until it forms a thick syrup, about five minutes. Make a smooth paste of flour and one-half cup of water, add to syrup and let come to a boil. Beat egg yolks, add cream or evaporated milk, and add to syrup. Cook over boiling water, or over very low fire, stirring constantly, until thick. It will require about ten minutes. Add vanilla. When slightly cooled, pour in tart shells. Cool, cover with the following meringue, and brown lightly in a slow oven.

MERINGUE

2 egg whites
2 tablespoons water
⅛ teaspoon cream of tartar
¼ cup granulated sugar

Add water to egg whites and beat until frothy. Add cream of tartar and beat until stiff. Add sugar, a little at a time, beating after each addition.

Modernizing the Home

In the Children's Domain

By Alma Zaiss

IN SKYSCRAPER-TOWN SUCH A WALL TREATMENT FOR THE CHILD'S ROOM IS NOT ONLY DECORATIVE, BUT MOST APPROPRIATE!

Dear Miss Zaiss:

I am desirous of furnishing a room for my eighteen months old son and would greatly appreciate any help you could give me. The room is about fourteen by fifteen feet and is to be painted pale green. I have an antique maple four-poster crib and also a maple toy box and a chest of drawers which I intended to paint pale yellow. I would appreciate any suggestion as to window decorations, pictures and covering for a day-bed which I would like to put in the room. Also the type of rug best suited for a child's room, and any extras you could suggest.

Thanking you in advance for any help you may give, I am

Sincerely,

(Mrs.) R. F.

Schemes That Are Interesting to Little Folks

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

AFTER the many recent problems concerning new furniture and rearrangements made necessary by approaching moving days... how refreshing, how altogether nice to receive this simple request for plans for a baby's room. Of late, in our efforts to assist parents with the more serious business of decorating grown-up rooms, we have quite neglected the youngsters. And that will never do...movers and new home-makers notwithstanding.

Mrs. F. has a charming large, well-lighted room with cross ventilation—the two first requisites for a child's room. The architectural features are also good; doors and windows well balanced, and walls broken only at convenient intervals. This time we shall want to sidestep the usual saccharine baby schemes beloved by fond aunts and uncles and suggest a plan that will not only prove practical and attractive, but extremely interesting for the little one who is to spend many hours in its company.

Readers will note from the diagram that the photograph has little to do with the arrangement of furniture suggested for Mrs. F.'s room. The setting is shown for the unusual wall treatment which, by reason of its irregular skyline, achieves a modern flavor. Such a treatment could be used very nicely for Mrs. F's well-balanced walls. She has suggested painting them green. No...please! Why not a delightful soft blue shading from pale to deeper azure at the base of the dropped border? Then use a scenic paper in juvenile design below the plain border in a manner somewhat similar to that illustrated, except that with the Early American furnishings it might be more consistent to use a straight border line instead of the modernistic effect. If the irregularity pleases Mrs. F., however, it would do no harm to use it. Of course she will see that the patterned paper is in harmony with blue.

If the figured walls are used, plain materials would be more pleasing than patterned fabrics for curtains and the cover for the day-bed and chairs. The colors should repeat or emphasize those found in the wall paper design, using the most prominent color for the curtains and the day-bed spread; the second and third best colors for slip-covers of the two easy chairs.

If Mrs. F. wants a carpeted floor, she may use plain all-over carpeting in a soft dull blue; or she may have one of the several good composition floors recommended for nurseries. Nothing is finer for a play surface and for comfort than cork "carpeting" or tiling, which can be laid over the finished floor much as one lays linoleum. The cork surface is warm and cleanly, resilient and sound-deadening to a nice degree, and its strong point is the fact that children can play about on it during winter weather without catching cold.

In planning the arrangement of pieces suggested for the room, we have placed the maple crib in the best spot for the avoidance of draughts and strong light. If the toy chest will fit under the window it will also make a nice seat for the child. Mrs. F. has not stated whether she has a nurse for the baby, but in any event it will be convenient to have the day-bed in the room, as well as the larger dresser, two easy chairs, a sewing table and a book table or magazine stand. These pieces make of the child's room something more than a nursery. They encourage hours spent there in comfort by both mother and father, and also permit friends of the family to interview his young lordship without actually bending the knee. The screen, of course, is a very necessary item where it is desired to maintain perfect ventilation without direct draught.

Now, for good measure, let us pass on to another scheme for a little boy's room wherein it would be effective to have the cork carpeting arranged in three shades, using a dark and a lighter border, wtih the entire center section laid out in a perfect checkerboard by means of alternate blocks of the dark and light tile.

Here again soft blue walls would be our choice, and at about chair rail eight we would put a molding to suggest a dado treatment on which would be mounted in frieze effect all kinds of interesting figures, placed low enough so that the child could play with them and make their intimate acquaintance.

For curtains in this gay room it would be nice to use rose colored organdie or sunfast rose cotton voile. The daybed cover and the slip for one chair might be of chintz, having a little block print design in the Early American manner. For the second chair we would use a plain or shaded fabric of a color found in the chintz, and the spread for the little crib should be of voile or organdie, the same as that used for the curtains.

In either scheme it would be better to give the chest a soft parchment painted finish than to use the pale yellow which Mrs. F. suggests. Lamps could be of pewter or glass, and we would have the pleated shades made from one of the printed papers which come in a number of clever childish patterns . . . among them such designs as have been used for booklet No. 3 and the new booklet No. 4 of the Home Modernization Series issued by The Evening World. These papers are usually oiled when intended for lamp shades . . . a treatment which gives them a mellow antique effect. A scrap basket could also be covered with the printed paper, and the body of the screen might be painted in a solid color with shallow panels of the paper mounted in picture-fashion near the top.

This completes two schemes full of fun for the little folks, who so richly deserve to be placed in a happy, attractive environment. If readers have enjoyed listening to the plans as much as we have enjoyed their working out—we may call this a decidedly worthwhile problem.

WHEN there is just a small quantity of paint or lacquer left over in the can do not throw it away. You may find it very handy for renovating, and paint is often difficult to match.

All you need to do to keep it in good condition is to put the lid on the can securely and set the can away in an upside down position. Of course the cover must fit tight to prevent leakage. When you are ready to use the paint you will find it in good condition.

Do Parental Mistakes Count?

"IT'S nonsense, this reading newspapers and books and going to lectures, to learn how to bring up children," says Grandfather. "My mother never studied how to bring us up." And if modesty did not forbid, grandfather would add, "and there's not much the matter with me."

But as a matter of fact there is a good deal the matter with grandfather. He has had an ungovernable temper all his life. Perhaps this temper was caused by wrong handling in childhood. At all events, if grandfather's parents had had the benefit of books and lectures they might have known how to help their child overcome his temper.

Many of us are struggling with fears, inferiority feelings, lack of initiative and other hangovers from our childhood. We, parents of today, want to exercise such intelligence in handling our young ones that they will not be similarly handicapped.

Perfect, our children will never be. No matter how much we study and how hard we try, being human, we shall probably make many mistakes in the way we handle our young ones. Will we spoil them forever if we lose our tempers occasionally? Will it do our youngsters irreparable harm if we use poor judgement at one time or another? It would be very sad if this were so.

I do not think our occasional mistakes will cause permanent injury to our children, providing there is the right sort of relationship between us. When parents are with their children a great deal, and there is a happy home atmosphere, and the young ones know that their parents are striving to do everything in their power for them, an occasional misstep will not have very serious effects. But in homes where the parents see little of their young ones a loss of temper or an injudicious punishment may cause a great deal of havoc.

When we are striving, unselfishly, to do the best that we can, the children realize this and are influenced by our inner feelings more than by our outer acts. So, let us continue to read and study, and strive to understand each one of our children, and bring out the best in each. And, if we do this, we need not worry that an occasional mistake will prove fatal.

Laundry Suggestions

When washing woolen articles be sure and rinse them thoroughly to remove all soap, for soap makes grease spots.

Soak silk undies about ten minutes before washing in lukewarm water, then wash rapidly in lukewarm water and rinse thoroughly in at least two waters of the same temperature. If much soiled use soapy water, but never rub soap directly on silk when washing it.

If there are snap fasteners on a garment fasten them together before putting them through the wringer—they will be less liable to become flattened down and useless.

Woolens will not shrink if hung on the line dripping wet and a fairly strong wind will help.

THE BIG LITTLE TOURNAMENT

PLAY-BY-PLAY report of the national open tournament for miniature golfers to be held on Lookout Mountain soon:

LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN, Chattanooga, Oct. 22—The national miniature golf tournament reached its climax here today. Singer's midgets, several dwarfs and three boy scouts fought it out for the silver demi-tasse cup.

A huge gallery followed the players. In fact, the mob so jammed Lookout Mountain that officials considered hiring Appomattox Court House and the Battlefield of Gettysburg for the overflow.

Teddy James, touted by the experts as the next midget golf champion, attracted a huge crowd. Teddy was immaculately clad in plus twos as he began his play. He drove off with a soda spoon for a nice 20-yard shot straight down the fairway and was on the green with a chip shot, using a stove poker for a club. He made the hole in 3, which is 3 over par.

On the second hole the potential champion was in slight trouble. His ball rolled into a wax drinking cup, one of the tricky water hazards, and in getting out of this predicament Teddy sliced his ball and it got lost in a spectator's whiskers. He made the hole in 4.

James played championship golf on the next five holes. On the sporty sixth of this miniature course he electrified the crowd by making a hole in one-half.

Following James and pressing him closely for the miniature title was Benny Glutz. Benny was not only a semifinalist in the recent state tournament, but reached the final seven-eighths. He was using a fly swatter as his favorite club, with deadly effect.

The tournament committee ruled off the course a spectator with a wooden leg who was making additional holes every other step he took. The miniature golf committee held a meeting at their headquarters in a telephone booth, alongside the pup tent used as press headquarters, and voted to give the spectator his money back.

On the eleventh hole Teddy James was in some trouble again. His tee shot landed in an ant hill, one of the course's worst sand traps, and it cost him an extra stroke to get out.

Meanwhile, Benny Glutz, his closest rival, was having difficulties too, especially on the ninth. In slashing his ball to get on the green, Glutz dug up a clod of turf and a grasshopper ran away with the divot. Play was suspended till the absconder was caught and the divot replaced. Benny made the hole in 7⅛.

Teddy James came into his own on the last three holes. He sank his ball in the sixteenth with two-thirds of a stroke and made the treacherous seventeenth in 3.1416, which is 99 per cent under par. On the final eighteenth hole, with the silver demitasse cup at stake, James calmly selected a glass julep mixer from among his clubs, took a few practice swings and holed out in .00005 flat.

This gave James the national miniature title, with a total card of 22¾. Benny Glutz was runner-up with a card of 22.875, which was audited with a microscope. Glutz won second prize, an ornamental radiator cap for a baby Austin motor car.

THIS AND THAT

The New York State Republican convention voted overwhelmingly for repeal. It wasn't a wet plank—it was a mahogany log.

A radio announcer talked continuously for twenty-four hours. There are lots of women we'd like to see him married to.

There's a drive against blue laws in Philadelphia. We always thought that bridge to Camden, N. J., had faded them to azure.

All of the United States is back on standard time. Now all we need are time clocks to punch.

Primo Carnera cleaned up $100,000 on his American tour. And even if it's in nickels, he can still get it all in his shoe.

A New York columnist was arrested for leading a street parade. Anyway, it proves all New York columnists aren't confined to back alleys.

Hereafter, foreign governments can't buy any future. And we wish they would pay us what they owe for their pasts.

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."
Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

MYSTERY DEATH OF WOMAN PROBED

MILWAUKEE, Wis., UP—The mysterious death of a woman believed to be Mrs. Cora Belle Hackett, a comely Chicago widow, attracted attention tonight of the most brilliant scientists and detectives of three mid-west states.

Authorities had only one definite clew to the identity of the body which was found in the wilderness of Lac Du Flambeau Indian reservation. They knew only that Mrs. Hackett had disappeared after motoring to that region on a honeymoon with George W. E. Perry, a persuasive fortune-hunter and bigamist.

The condition of the body made identification difficult. Two dentists who had worked on Mrs. Hackett's teeth were called here from Chicago. Scientists hoped they might be able to identify the body through peculiarities of bone structure.

Met Woman

The widow, whose first husband was a member of President Roosevelt's secret service guard, met Perry when he answered a newspaper want-ad in which she advertised for a woman companion to accompany her on a trip to California.

Dapper, persuasive and apparently of good breeding, Perry told his new acquaintaince that he owned considerable property in California. With his proposal, he gave an explanation that his mother, believing him a spendthrift, wanted him to marry before taking control of the family fortune.

After their marriage, he persuaded Mrs. Hackett to borrow $500 for the honeymoon trip to northern Wisconsin. They left Chicago in mid-June. On July 3, Mrs. Hackett's friends received their last letter from her, telling them that she was "very happy."

Was Agitated

Perry's first wife told Milwaukee police that her husband telephoned her on July 9 and he appeared agitated. He was at Milwaukee, she said, and she was in Cleveland, their home. She quoted him as saying:

"I've done something I didn't care to have done."

Perry appeared in Cleveland the next day, driving an automobile similar to the one owned by Mrs. Hackett and which they had driven on their honeymoon. The first Mrs. Perry said his luggage was initialed "C. B. H." and contained feminine wearing apparel.

He explained that his aunt had given him the clothing as a gift for Mrs Perry. He remained in Cleveland until August 12 and then disappeared.

Dan Noziglia Mourns Death Of Father

Dan Noziglia of Richmond is mourning the loss of his father, Louis Noziglia, who passed away in San Francisco.

The deceased was 78 years of age at the time of his death. He was a pioneer Merced merchant, having come there in 1871. He retired eight years ago, and visited his native land, Italy. Since that time he has made his home with his daughter, Mrs. Matilda Cook, in San Francisco.

He leaves, besides the two children mentioned, a daughter, Mrs. Josephine Gesler of San Francisco.

Arrangements are in the hands of Wilson and Kratzer funeral parlors. The remains will be laid to rest in the family plot at Merced.

Chief Cooper To Talk To Kiwanis

Election of officers will be held at the Kiwanis club meeting of Nov. 5.

Mrs. MacIntosh Seriously Ill

Little hope is held for the recovery of Mrs. J. T. MacIntosh of 1027 Macdonald avenue, who is critically ill with pneumonia in the McCloud hospital.

Mrs. MacIntosh was stricken last Saturday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. R. D. Wetzel. Her illness has brought to her bedside many members of her family. Mr. MacIntosh and Mrs Emmett Hitchcock, a daughter, went to the McCloud hospital Saturday. Others who have gone to her bedside are a son, Charles, and his wife, and Emmett Hitchcock and Mrs. Henrietta Curry, a friend of the family. A son in Fresno, J. A. MacIntosh, could not be reached at once.

The local woman went to care for Mrs. Wetzel at McCloud a month ago. She was stricken suddenly Saturday while apparently in fine health.

tribution of food in the capital.

President Washington Luis issued a decree calling out the reserves. The decree admitted the gravity of the situation. All leaves in the services were postponed three months for volunteers, conscripts and regulars in the first military zone around Rio De Janeiro.

The first minor clashes in the offensive were reported during the day. The capital remained calm despite war-like preparations and martial law. The city had a holiday atmosphere, banks being closed, but business elsewhere appeared normal.

Federal troops defeated rebel forces at the town of Pouso Alegre, across the border of Minas Geraes State, northwest of Rio De Janeiro, reports in federal quarters declared. The federal troops captured a number, the remainder fleeing in the direction of Sao Paulo, about 200 miles south of this city.

A detachment of Rio De Janeiro state police captured 60 Minas Geraes State police in an engagement at Rio Preto, a report here said. The federal authorities captured machine guns and took the city, a town of 4000 between here, and Bello Horizonte, capital of Minas Gearaes, 200 miles away.

CAPTURE OF TWO TOWNS TOLD

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Oct. 7.—UP—Capture of Natal and Pernambuco, in the extreme northern tip of Brazil, was claimed by revolutionists in a communique from Porto Alegre, state of Rio Grande Do Sul, tonight, as federal and rebel troops swung into action on widely separated fronts.

Revolutionist headquarters at Porto Alegre, declared 5000 men under Capt. Juarez Tavora, had occupied the two northern cities, and that the provinces of which they are the capitals had joined the revolt.

The governors of Rio Grande Do Norte and Pernambuco were declared to have fled aboard the steamer Itanage. A rebel destroyer was reported pursuing them.

A second rebel communique at Porto Alegre declared Itarara, in Sao Uaulo State, had been captured by a revolutionary force under Gen. Miguel Costa. The communique said these advices came from Col. Goes Monteiro, chief of staff of Getulio Vargas, governor of Rio Grande Do Sul and head of the rebellion.

School Principals To Hold Meeting

Elementary and junior high school principals will meet in Martinez today to discuss courses of study. The meeting was called by County School Superintendent W. H. Hanlon.

GOVERNMENT OF SAMOA TOLD

PAGO PAGO, Tutuila, Samoa, Oct. 7.—UP—This was a day that will go down in history as marking the dawn of a new era of self government in one of America's smallest possessions, Eastern Samoa.

Before a colorful throng of Samoan chiefs and commoners, barefoot and clad in lava-lavas, or skirt-like garments, the Congressional Samoan commission announced details of the proposed organtic law which will be submitted to the congress of the United States.

Plans agreed upon by the commission extend American citizenship to the Samoans, provide for self government with the "fono," or council of chiefs, as the legislative body, include the right to appeal to United States courts and permit the Samoans to have a bill of rights, as forecast by the United Press.

Pact Lauded

The announcement at the formal ceremony was received with gratification by all Samoans and apparently fulfilled desires of the Mau, an organization of progressive Samoans desiring citizenship and self-government whose fervor has at times resulted in a breach with the government.

During the hearings which were held every day last week, the Mau spoke officially through only three witnesses, who were backed by the committee of 47 and asserted they represented 6000 Samoans. They claimed they presented the most constructive form of government and the most constructive criticisms that could be offered by their people.

Senator Hiram Bingham, chairman of the commission, claimed the Mau had not influenced congress in sending the commission and the entire commission to scrutinize activities of the Mau closely.

The commission, however, after analyzing Samoan conditions during the public hearings, found itself drawn to the same conclusions of what sort of government Samoa should have as leaders of the Mau had held.

Chief Present

The Mau was formed back in the days when Commander Warren J. Terhune who committed suicide, was governor.

Sitting with the commission was high chief Mauga, 71, the "grand ol' man" of American Samoa, signatory of the 1900 treaty of cession to the United States, whose criticism of financial conditions here in 1920 was the basic cause for organization of the Mau.

Mauga, mild mannered and conservative, withdrew from the Mau when Captain Waldo Evans came to investigate the Samoan government under Terhune and found everything regular.

New Leaders

More fiery members of the Mau carried on, however, in protest against other so-called grievances.

New leaders arose, including Chief Magalei, one of two Mau chairmen who sat with High Chief Mauga as Samoan members of the commission, and Chief Eufele, 32, sturdy, handsome, a former student in Hawaii, whose people in Manua have been thoroughly satisfied with the government.

These three, representing different viewpoints, were able to face their people with congressional members of the commission and announce the plans agreed upon, which apparently pleased all.

Man Injured In Car Crash

John Paeth, 5641 Huntington avenue, was slightly injured early yesterday morning when his car collided with a machine driven by Richard Netgus, 504 Forty-first street, according to police reports.

The accident occurred at Twenty-third street, between Nevin and Barrett.

Paeth was treated by Dr. L. A. Hedges at the Abbott Emergency hospital, and was later removed to his home.

University Of Missouri Has 96th Birthday

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 7.—UP—With the opening of this year's term, the University of Missouri begins its 91st year, but only its 58th year as a co-educational institution.

The university was founded in 1839 and at that time had seventy-four students. Now the enrollment is nearly 4000, a total enrollment of thirty-three years later, in 1872, women were admitted. At first they were chaperoned most carefully and not allowed to read in the library the same time as the men.

Two years prior to the admission of women, the fraternities came into existence and they were playing an active part in the social life of the school by 1880.

The graduating classes also show the rapid increase. In 1843 the graduating class numbered two; in 1930 the class totaled 813. Corresponding increases have been made in the attendance of the summer sessions when the enrollment reached its peak with 2057 for 1929.

CHANDLER WILL ATTEND R. R. HEARING

Frank M. Chandler, well known local traffic man, left last night to attend the railroad commission hearing in Los Angeles and protect the interests of Richmond as the official representative of the chamber of commerce.

The hearing is for the purpose of considering the application of the Southern Pacific to adjust and increase its class rates between San Francisco and Los Angeles and to the coast division points between the north and the south. Nearly every class of commodity will be affected, according to Chandler.

"Our interest is to protect the terminal rates to and from Richmond," said Chandler. "It is not the desire of the carrier to increase our rates, but other towns may attack the problem from the angle that Richmond should not be accorded the present terminal rates. We will present evidence tending to keep these in force.

"It will be my purpose to intervene only as Richmond's interests may make it seem necessary."

Chandler was recently authorized by the traffic committee of the chamber of commerce to represent the city at the hearing.

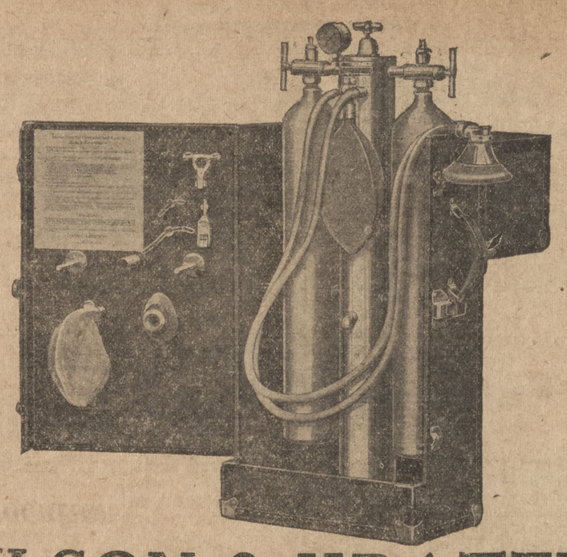
Resuscitator and Inhalator



WILSON & KRATZER

Have equipped their already well equipped ambulance with the most modern appliance for reviving persons whose heart and lung actions have ceased.

A RESUSCITATOR

for the restoration of persons who for any reason have lost the power of breathing. In this case it delivers oxygen into and out of the lungs by mechanical means at a speed of as near natural breathing as possible; this speed being regulated by the operator. The lung capacity of the patient is automatically taken care of at all times by the machine. It is supplied with three safety devices built into the mechanism of the machine, making it mechanically impossible to harm the most delicate tissues of the respiratory system. Those safety devices are so constructed that they cannot be tampered with so that any one of them will prevent undue pressure reaching the patient's lungs.

The INHALATOR

is similar in operation to most others on the market. It simply supplies the patient with oxygen for him to breathe in a natural way, or where it is desired to use manual means of respiration. An auxiliary air inlet is provided to dilute the oxygen if desired, and also to allow the patient to breathe freely while the mask is being adjusted or strapped to the face. The Inhalator is controlled by the same method as the Resuscitator. The machine can be changed from Resuscitator to Inhalator, or vice versa, instantly, by moving a simple lever, there being no changing of mask or other paraphernalia required.

Physicians—Nurses—Hospitals

—will recognize the great value of this machine in cases where respiration has temporarily ceased or where the necessity arises for forcing oxygen into the lungs.
